THE NEW SIENKIEWICZ NOVEL, READY TO-DAY

WHIRLPOOLS

By Henryk Sienkiewicz

This new novel by the author of "With Fire and Sword," "Quo Vadis," etc., deals with conditions of modern life. The hero and heroine are made the central figures of a notable group of life-like characters and there is an unusual love story. Brilliant dialogue, profound thought, and subtle analysis of human motives permeate the book, and the novelist shows that he has been a close observer of recent agrarian troubles and socialistic intrigues in Poland.

Translated from the Polish by Max A. Drezmal. Cloth, $1.50

ALSO PUBLISHED TO-DAY

THE PURSUIT

By Frank Savile

Romantic in action, sustained in plot, and novel in incident, with Tangier for the background.

Illustrated by Herman Pfeifer. Cloth, $1.50

Timely Summer Books

FOR

Travellers or Readers

A LABRADOR SPRING

By CHARLES WENDELL TOWNSEND

Author of "Along the Labrador Coast"

THIS volume is interesting not only as a description of a cruise along a portion of the southern Labrador coast beset with islands and abounding in salmon rivers, but also from its human atmosphere of Acadian fishermen, fur traders and Montagnais Indians, and it gives one many glimpses of the picturesque life in these little known regions.

The chief object of Dr. Townsend's vacation trip to Labrador was a study of the brief northern spring with its melting snow-banks, its bursting buds and procession of flowers, its migrating birds and Indians and the varied spring activities of its white settlers.

This book, like "Along the Labrador Coast," by the same author, is fully illustrated by numerous well-chosen photographs taken on the trip.

Illustrated. Cloth. 12mo. $1.50

WAYWARD ANNE

By CURTIS YORKE

THE secret of Curtis Yorke's popularity with "all sorts and conditions" of readers is that she writes from experience in life and art, that she possesses clearness of vision, and that in all her work there is a refreshing absence of the "mechanical" and the "unreal." The plot of "Wayward Anne" is simplicity itself —but it is the simplicity of the art which conceals art. An unconventional friendship of a man, who is under a cloud, with a girl who believes in him, forms its basis.

Cloth. 12mo. $1.50

THE BEAUTIFUL ENGLAND SERIES

A NEW exquisite series illustrating the prominent features of picturesque England. The volumes will be printed on fine paper, each containing 48 pages, size $7\frac{1}{8} \times 9\frac{5}{8}$, of letter-press and 12 colored reproductions of water colors, mounted and inserted as plates, that have been made expressly for the work by Ernest Haslehust. The text is written by well-known and competent writers.

"'The Man Higher Up,' the new novel by Henry Russell Miller, leads the way as the strongest new book of the Spring.

"It is big and ambitious; it has news value; it engages an important theme; it has real significance. It is a great book because of a sort of underlying defiance there is in it.

"It throws out a superb challenge; it has something intensely vital in it, something so virile that you involuntarily get beyond the story and back to the man who wrote it."—Oakland Tribune.

THE NEW NOVEL

"NATHAN BURKE"

By MARY S. WATTS. Cloth, $1.50

Don't be discouraged by the length of "Nathan Burke." You will read and re-read many times every one of its 628 pages. What is more, your children and grandchildren will also read them, and this can be said truly of few current popular novels.

It is unfortunate that you should have been misled into buying many worthless novels by unscrupulous advertisements and still more unscrupulous so-called reviews. "Nathan Burke" is different. You will be glad that this advertisement induced you to buy it, and

"Nathan Burke" is published by The Macmillan Company, and our recommendation to you to buy it and read it means something even in these days when so many poor novels are widely advertised and exploited.

"NATHAN BURKE." WHAT THE BEST CRITICS SAY:

"The longer we abide with her friendly group the more interesting they become and the more sorry are we to find the volume in our hand growing thicker on its left. However, one may always read again, and the reading again and yet again brings out subtle revelations, delicate nuances, at first unperceived. Especially does one appreciate more and more the quality of the humor, existing as a pervasive flavor, not a succession of flashes."—The New York Times.

"'Nathan Burke' has a universal appeal."—New York American.

Only once in a decade, says the Boston Transcript, is a new novel added to the list of those "destined to endure." "In the enthusiasm aroused by the first reading of 'Nathan Burke,' one is inclined to extravagance of praise. Here is a novel so sound, so filled with much that has inspired the great novels, that it is hard to maintain moderate standards of comparison."

The Outlook finds that it responds well to the only test for this kind of writing, that "the interest continues throughout, increasing rather than abating as the story slowly unfolds."

"NATHAN BURKE"

is "the best book that has appeared for years."
"The most fascinating new book of the Spring."

NOTES IN SEASON.

No announcement has yet been made as to when Mr. Roosevelt's series of European addresses will be published in book form.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have ready "The Dethronement of the City Boss," by John J. Hamilton, which gives a complete description of the workings of the Des Moines or commission plan of city government, now in operation in upwards of 70 cities and being fostered by the press everywhere.

THOUGH published but a month ago, Miss L. H. Montgomery's new book, "Kilmeny of the Orchard," has already jumped into the ranks of the "best sellers," and its publishers (L. C. Page & Company, Boston) are rushing through a fourth large edition to meet the insistent demand for the new book by the author of "Anne of Green Gables," now in its twenty-second large edition, and its sequel, "Anne of Avonlea," now in its eleventh edition.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just issued "Sterne: a Study," by Walter Sichel, to which is added "The Journal to Eliza," printed for the first time, four new letters and eleven illustrations in text; "The Laws of Life and Health," by Dr. Alexander Bryce, presented in simplest language; "Chats on Electricity," by Frank Broadbent, fully illustrated by the author; and "Hydrographic Surveying, a Practical Handbook," by Commander S. V. S. C. Messum, retired, Royal Navy, with 262 figures and 22 plates.

B. W. HUEBSCH, New York, announces that he will publish a new novel by James Oppenheim, the author of the "Dr. Rast" stories. It may be predicted that the book will become the subject of controversy, for the author has taken as his central theme a social evil which is usually avoided in public discussion, but which he treats reverently and understandingly. His point of view is that of Dr. Prince A. Morrow, head of the Society of Sanitary and Moral Prophylaxis. Skilfully interwoven is a beautiful story in which are introduced the East Side figures which Mr. Oppenheim has made famous. This novel is said to reveal a distinct advance in the author's development.

HURST & CO., always on the alert for timely publicity, call the attention of the trade to their Boy Aviators' Series, of which there will be six, of which "The Boy Aviators in Nicaragua, or, in League With the Insurgents," and "The Boy Aviators on Secret Service, or, Working With Wireless," are now ready. Now that Glenn H. Curtiss, the aviator, has made his famous trip from Albany to New York, books on aerial navigation will be much sought for. They also announce that they are making an entirely new series of boys' books, entitled the Boy Scout Series (trademark registered). The titles of this series will be given out later. Their Boy Aviator Series is having a very satisfactory sale, the second volume being just published.

THIS is June, the month of brides and roses. If booksellers cannot prepare especially for the latter they can for the former. One of the best ways to do this is to secure an ample supply of such a book as Houghton Mifflin's just published manual for the bride-to-be, "Her Book." It contains a diary to begin at the time of her engagement, for recording luncheons, teas, "showers," and other pleasant happenings; pages for listing wedding presents and the dates of their acknowledgment; pages for lists of wedding guests, bridesmaids and ushers; for descriptions of the bride's trousseau, her wedding gown and veil; for photographs and newspaper clippings; in short for everything of importance that occurs in one of the happiest times of a girl's life.

The scene is laid in New York among the very rich. Mrs. Missioner, a wealthy widow, breaks the chain of her diamond necklace while sitting in her box at the opera. Her guests scramble about to find them and all but one, the most valuable, is recovered. Finally one of the men steps on something which goes to powder under his heel; it proves to be the missing gem. On examination the rest of the stones are found to be paste also, the real ones having been stolen. Then ensues an exciting hunt and following of many clues by Britz, the detective, who finally finds and returns the jewels to their owner.

Two little boys and a girl disliking school in beautiful Italy wish to be crickets, butterflies, ants—all the happy things that do not need to look at books. One boy becomes an ant, his sister a butterfly, and the imaginative, poetic story, full of knowledge of insects and knowledge of human nature will make all children eager to read a book once more. What happened the sister in the world of butterflies is promised shortly. The translation is good and the illustrations colored and in black and white are a feature of the volume.

A striking book of travel which reflects the observations and opinions of L. A. Bigger, a retired banker, of Hutchinson, Kan. Mr. Bigger's travels were extensive, and he has described them from the point of view of the practical man of affairs, rather than of the writer whose only aim is to entertain. The volumes are compiled from letters written to friends during nearly three years of travel and are illustrated by more than 200 photographs.

Brown, Katharine Holland. Philippa at Halcyon. N. Y., Scribner, 1910. c. 422 p. pls. D. cl., $1.50.

Halcyon is a Western college. An uncle of delightful Philippa makes it possible for her to go there. The story opens with the presents popular Philippa receives when she is packing up to leave home, a heterogenous conglomeration, every one of which she loves and contrives to take with her. Gives a stirring, wholesome view of college life for girls and its benefits, and describes the individualities of many natural, healthy, lovely girls, their plans and ambitions, and the influence Philippa exercised while winning all hearts.

Bruce, H: Addington Bayley. Daniel Boone and the wilderness road. N. Y., Macmilan, 1910. c. 13+349 p. pls. pors. D. cl., $1.50.

This book is intended to serve the double purpose of a biography of Daniel Boone and a study of the first phase of the territorial growth of the United States. On the biographical side every effort has been made to present an accurate and complete account of Boone's life, and also to estimate his specific contributions to the progress of the nation; historically, the author's aim has been to describe the process of expansion in its military, political, economical and social aspects. Institutional history of Virginia in the seventeenth century; an inquiry into the religious, moral, educational, legal, military, and political condition of the people, based on original and contemporaneous records. In 2 v. N. Y., Putnam, 1910. 13+707; 6+697 p. O. cl., $6 net, boxed.

In his "Economic history of Virginia in the seventeenth century" and "Social life in Virginia in the seventeenth century" Dr. Bruce has described in detail two sides of colonial life, and now he completes the picture of Virginian conditions previous to 1700. He has examined original documents which had bearing on his subject in this country and England, and in these two volumes on the institutional history will be found exhaustive information on the religious, educational, legal, military and political conditions in Virginia. From 1872 to 1884 the author of "Erewhon" and "Erewhon revisited" worked on this story of modern English life and character. His death in 1902 put an end to his hopes of revising it. R. A. Streatfield has slightly edited it and provided missing portions. It is a ridicule of vain pretension; a showing up of humbug in education, politics and religion; a study in heredity and a great picture of the latter half of the Victorian era. Bernard Shaw confesses to having gleaned much of the ideas in his great plays from Samuel Butler.

The author of "Bobby Burnit" has another story of the business world. Sam Turner, a successful young promoter, decides to take a well earned vacation. On the very first day he meets "the only girl in the world," and with his usual energy starts in to win her. His ruling passion, business, is always interfering with his meetings with the girl, and it is only after many interruptions at the seemingly critical moment that he wins her and a business deal as well.

Writer is author of "Tibet and Turkestan" and joint author of "The electric railway in theory and practice." This treatise inquires as to what is moral and what ought to be legal. It endeavors to classify the causes that lead men to strike and seeks to put all men on guard in respect to their leaders, those necessary yet dangerous elements of any organization. The writer proves it is the right of all men to refuse all commercial intercourse between commercial contestants provided violence, lying and hate are avoided. He aims to help both sides to clearer vision and wider charity.

Here is the "inside story" of the blowing up of the Maine and the events that preceded the war with Spain. It is of diplomatic intrigue in Washington, interwoven with a strong love story and spiced with thrilling and humorous incidents. Written by one who has breathed for years the intimate atmosphere of the circle he depicts the story carries a sense of revelation of hidden and secret things. It gives an insight into diplomatic life, with a series of strikingly realistic pictures of great diplomatists in action.

By the author of "The red saint" "Uthra and Ingraine," etc. The setting for this story is modern England, and it gets its name from a bed of Roman antiquities found on the hero's estate. Heriot, released from prison, takes to a wild life among the pine woods on Mistmoor. But before long he discovers that a man cannot shut himself wholly from the world and that love itself will force him into the light of day.

Aurore Dupin, known to the literary world as "George Sand," was born in Paris in 1804 and was the contemporary and close companion of all the great literary men of her generation. This fine creative criticism by a member of the Academie Française first took the form of a series of lectures delivered before the Société des Conférences in Paris last year. With sympathetic insight he studies this diverse and elusive genius, who wrote such wonderful novels of love and consolation and such all-conflicting autobiography. There are several portraits of rare interest.

To reconstruct the life of ancient Rome one must go to other parts of Italy than the Imperial City, where there are comparatively few ruins of the pre-Augustan age, and those few not so well-preserved as many elsewhere. This book, by the professor of ancient history and archæology at Princeton, is a picture of ancient Italy and Rome drawn from her rivals and early offspring. For the prehistoric age the author draws on such cities as Norba, Ferentino and Alatri; Etruscan and Umbrian elements are furnished by Perugia, Volterra, Falerii, Tarquinii and Assisi; among less ancient colonies or dependencies, Spoleto, New Falerii and Cosa. The policies of Cæsar and Augustus are illustrated in Italy by the colonies of Spello, Aquino, Rimini, Aosta, Verona, Turin, and in Dalmatia by Salona, Pola, and other ruins of unusual interest. These and other cities show how close is the union between politics and the monuments in Roman history.

Author was formerly member of the Legislative Assembly for the City of Cape Town, and later Agent General for the Cape of Good Hope. The book is founded on close intimacy with Cecil Rhodes. Gives complete estimate of his public career and recalls the best traditions treasured in the heart of his friends. "With all the strife and tumult to which his great undertakings gave rise, he was a 'great reconciler,' anxious to bring nationalities and races together for a common purpose, the future historian will inscribe the name of Cecil Rhodes among the founders of that great movement which is to-day bringing into one nationality the various races and interests in South Africa." This tells the story of her love for Rames, and reveals the mysteries and black magic of the old Egyptians. Wizards appear wielding the powers of the good and evil gods and the ancient lore embodied is taken from many monuments and writings supplemented by Rider Haggard's undaunted imagination.

Under the Des Moines plan, the ward system of government has been abolished, party control eliminated, direct responsibility secured, and the supremacy of the people in their own affairs re-established. Mr. Hamilton, in addition to his account of the plan itself, and the success with which it has been worked out, gives in an appendix the text of the famous Des Moines Charter. So great has been the interest in it, that more than 50,000 copies of the charter itself have been printed and called for in small pamphlet form, but this volume is the first work in which the significance and efficiency of the charter are made clear to the lay-mind, and its successful operations set forth in concrete facts.

Harris, Lawrence. With Mulai Hafid at Fez; behind the scenes in Morocco; with a front. in colour and 38 illustrations. Bost., Badger, 1910. 16+270 p. O. cl., $3 net, boxed.

In September, 1908, Mr. Harris was sent by his paper to interview and sketch Mulai Hafid, the new Sultan of Morocco, who had deposed Abdul Aziz, his brother. This was a dangerous mission, the anti-foreign feeling being very strong and Fez practically closed against the outside world. This book is the record of the author's success in his undertaking and a frank, unvarnished tale of the degeneracy of Morocco and its inhabitants.

Harrison, J: S. The teachers of Emerson. N. Y., Sturgis & Walton, 1910. c. 325 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

The assistant professor of English in Kenyon College, Gambier, O., has made a careful study of the sources of Emerson's transcendentalism, and come to the conclusion that Greek thought, not German, was the most important factor in Emerson's intellectual development. To prove his point, the author here gives a comparative study of the Sage of Concord and the Platonists. Bibliography (3 p.). Index.

Author belongs to many societies interested in psychical research. He says: "We are dealing today with the various phases of transcendentalism, and even here we have reached a plane in which serious conflict has terminated and psychical students are searching out, with perfect and friendly interest, the solution of the still remaining open questions. . . . The final conclusions lie along lines already far advanced, and the future advances will be to still higher planes which we already clearly see and can more or less map out." All this is now brought into a compact volume covering the work of many famous students.

Hunt, Violet B. The wife of Altamont. N. Y., Brentano's, 1910. 292 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Begins with the launching of a ship in the north of England. A restless girl, daughter of a clergyman who has married his cook, witnesses the stirring sight, meets the reporters and begins her strenuous career. Altamont was the son of a nobleman and an actress and heredity plays a strong part in the involved plot. The heroine has character and force, but she is influenced by surroundings and often her mind and actions show lack of refinement.

This story has been running serially and anonymously in Harper's Monthly, as did the author's other book, "The inner shrine." Norrie Ford has been convicted of murder in a rural court of Vermont, he escapes and is hidden for three weeks by a girl he has never seen before. When the hue and cry has died down she gives him money, a new name, Herbert Strange, and starts him off to Argentina without telling him who she is. At the end of eight years he returns to New York engaged to the girl's dearest relative, and meets Miriam again. Then ensues a struggle between his honor and his love, which makes a story or great interest, ending happily for the chief actors in the drama.

The play of "Chantecler" in French has already reached a sale of 119,000 copies. It is a satire on all the weaknesses and follies of men and women and the theories and problems of the day. A translation appeared in Hampton's for June, and this long discussed play in which the parts are enacted by the inhabitants of a barnyard is almost ready for representation in this country.

Royle, E: Milton. The silent call. N. Y., Scribner, 1910. c. 392 p. pls. D. cl., $1.50.

The hero of this novel of the West is the son of "The Squaw Man," the hero of the author's successful play. He is an Indian half-breed, whose father was an Englishman of noble family. After being trained for the army in the best English schools he hears the "silent call" back to the western ranch where he was born. An "asphalt claim" furnishes the interest of the plot and a compelling love story explains its outcome.

Sabatini, Rafael. Arms and the maid; or, Anthony Wilding. N. Y., Putnam, 1910. c. 6+367 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

A romance of the heroic type. On the historic side the novel presents a picture of England on the eve of Monmouth's ill-starred invasion and gives an account of the series of calamities whose culminative force brought about the complete overthrow of the army of the Protestant Duke. The hero is an ardent adherent of Monmouth's, and his reckless devotion to the cause is equalled only by his fidelity to the woman he loves, whose sympathies are with King James.

Short, Josephine Helena. Oberammergau. N. Y., Crowell, [1910.] c. 10+84 p. pls. D. cl., $1 net.

A timely book giving an intimate view of those villagers who, in carrying out a vow made by their ancestors nearly three hundred years ago, once in ten years perform the Passion Play. Miss Short saw the play seven times in 1900, and later stayed a month in Oberammergau to witness the closing scenes of Passion summer. She clears the people of all suspicion of commercialism. Two chapters in the book are given up to an exposition of the drama for the assistance of visitors who do not readily follow the German of the performers, and to an explanation of the tableaux, which precede the different acts of the main play.

Sichel, Wa. Sydney. Sterne; a study; to which is added the Journal to Eliza. Phil., Lippincott, 1910. 13+360 p. pors. O. cl., $2.50.

A study of the author of "A sentimental journey" which strives to reconstruct the man's temperament as it is shown in his letters, his books and the comments in letters of friends and acquaintances. Mrs. Sterne is also vitalized for the reader and relationship to Mrs. Montagu emphasized. The "Journal to Eliza," which is included, is the record of one of Sterne's sentimental adventures, the lady being Mrs. Eliza Draper. References in footnotes.

Mechanics as presented in this volume is founded upon a course in mathematics extending through the calculus. The student is assumed, also, to be familiar with the fundamentals of force, energy and such preliminary courses as are included in text-books or general physics. Index.

Smyth-Vaudry, Telesphor. Peter's name; or, a divine credential in a name. [Techny, Ill., Divine Word, 1910.] c. '09. 9-160 p. D. cl., $1.

This book is written from the Roman Catholic standpoint and concerns itself with the authority vested in Peter the Apostle through his God-given name. The author considers his subject in two parts: 1st, Peter's name proclaims him possessor of all church-power, under Christ; 2d, Peter's name proclaims him the source of all church-power, under Christ.

Sonnenschein, W: Swann. The best books; a reader's guide to the choice of the best available books (about 100,000) in every department of science, art and literature, with the dates of the first and last editions, and the price, size, and publisher's name (both English and American) of each book; a contribution toward systematic bibliography; with complete authors and subjects index. 3d ed., (entirely rewritten.) In 3 pts. pt. 1. N. Y., Putnam, 1910. 459 p. O. cl., $3.50 net.

A new edition of a work that has achieved a considerable name as a reference book. "To all intents and purposes a new work, omitting, as it does, all books that have been superseded, and bringing the subject down to date." Mr. Sonnenschein's work is intended to be a reader's guide to the best available books in every department of science, art, and literature, and furnishes information as to the date of the first and last editions, price, size, publisher, etc. It will be published in three parts, which may be obtained separately, divided as follows: part I, Theology, mythology, folklore and philosophy; part II, Society, geography, history and antiquities; part III, Science, medicine, literature and philology.

Spargo, J: Karl Marx: his life and work. N. Y., Huebsch, 1910. c. 359 p. pors. facsims., O. cl., $2.50 net.

By the author of "The substance of socialism," "The socialism of William Morris," etc. Mr. Spargo has spent thirteen years gathering his material for this biography of the founder of scientific Socialism in Germany, France, Russia, Belgium, England and America. He has been aided by Madame Lafargue, the daughter, and also by friends of Marx. The many sided man is here shown, not only the economist and philosopher, but the husband, father, the poet and the world-patriot. The background afforded by his time and the personalities of his contemporaries—friends and antagonists—are no less interesting than the subject himself. Index.

Lord Waring is a spendthrift, but brave and generous, the exact opposite of his half-brother, Mark, who is bitterly envious and desirous of having the title. While hunting Lord Waring runs down a young girl and apparently injures her for life. In despair he agrees to kill himself at the end of a year if his brother will give him a large sum of money. No sooner is the contract made than the young man falls desperately in love with Hélène von Gerold, the crippled girl; his brother also desires to marry her as she is rich. The straightening of this tangle involves three attempts on Mark's life and other exciting incidents.

The Publishers' Weekly
FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT

June 4, 1910

The editor is not responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.
Publishers should send books promptly for weekly record and descriptive annotation, if possible in advance of publication. The Record of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

WHOLE NO. 2001.

WITH this issue, Whole No. 2001, THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY enters upon the third thousand of its weekly numbers. Vol. No. 1 was issued Thursday, January 18, 1872, by Frederick Leypoldt, under the title of The Publishers and Stationers' Weekly Trade Circular, as the first issue of a "new series" —the implied reference being to the literary bulletin which Mr. Holt had started from the publishing house of Leypoldt & Holt. The new undertaking Mr. Leypoldt ventured single-handed and alone, and thenceforward he gave his full soul and all his energies to bibliographical work. Separated from that day by these two thousand numbers, it is difficult to appreciate the disadvantages with which he contended, and it is because of his wise foresight in planning and his undaunted energy in pushing forward that THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has grown to its present proportions and usefulness.

It is sufficient to cite, by way of contrast, the bibliographical development of this journal as a record of American book production. In one of the early numbers Mr. Leypoldt made striking example of the difficulty of collecting bibliographical data by confining the weekly record to the three (!) titles which had been sent in by publishers. The machinery for collecting as well as that for preparing and presenting this material has of course been vastly developed since then, and now only a proportion of the material comes directly from publishers. We shall record this year in all probability approximately 12,000 titles—a fact which in itself shows the immense development of the American booktrade in these thirty-five years and the corresponding growth in trade journalism. In fact trade bibliography must sooner or later become selective rather than comprehensive, and the Library of Congress must ultimately accept the responsibility of presenting the national bibliography from time to time, if it is to be adequately done.

Of those who were associated with Frederick Leypoldt in those early days, only three remain in relation with THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and look back over more than thirty years to personal and business relation with his loved personality and honorable devotion to his chosen work. It is scarcely within the bounds of human probability that any of these will be connected with THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY when the third thousand of its issues is rounded up, but they will leave to their successors traditions and ideals which they may hope will be prolonged into the far future.

THE express companies seem to lack an accounting system which gives them full knowledge and command of their own figures. But they now make an annual statement to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the census bulletin published in 1904 gives a conspectus of their affairs. Some weighings in 1909, reported in the former, show the average weight of parcel transported by the United States Express Company to be 31.32 pounds and the average price per pound (without regard to distance) 1.39 cents, and by the Wells Fargo Express Company 33.29 pounds at 1.42 cents. We are informed also that weighings made at the United States Express Company in 1904 over the New Jersey Central and Reading system paid the railroad company 12.28 per ton mile, this representing a large proportion of small packages at minimum or short haul rates; on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul system, 9.64 cents per ton mile, and on the Rock Island 8.73 cents per ton mile—which figures must be doubled to give the actual return of the express companies. These figures indicate that we were in error in the editorial estimate of ten cents per ton mile as an average express charge and five cents as express payment to the railroads, and that the minimum charge and the large proportion of increased rates for small packages account for more than we assumed. These figures effect seriously the question of railway mail pay, and we shall hope later to procure and present such authoritative express figures as will throw light on the situation.

THE PRESENT POSITION OF FICTION.

"THE position of fiction in this country," said the (English) Athenæum recently, "presents some points of interest which are well worth consideration. Two decades ago it was calculated that the output of novels was some 800 a year. Since then the number has steadily increased, and probably the quantity of original fiction has more than doubled in twenty years. It must never be forgotten that all arts suffer a gradual change; that, where there is no development, there must be degeneration, leading to the dissolution of death. The drama, epic poetry, prose essays, fiction—all are in a state of flux, and have been ever since they were started in being.

"And evolution at its greatest amounts to revolution. It was tantamount to a revolution when Fielding created the modern novel out of its picaresque and fragmentary antecedents. It may be that we are upon the eve of a revolution again. The fecundity of the novel, its breeding power, may seem to point to a new departure, to a determination and a fresh 'break.'

"Nowadays it is understood among writers of fiction that the first consideration is serialization. The life of the average novel is, as we have said more than once, barely three months, and in consequence the sales of that novel cannot be very great. The author, knowing this in advance, invariably endeavors to recoup himself by previous publication in serial form. Thus the existence of the magazine has an influence upon the novelist. He tends to write with one eye upon its necessities and requirements; and as these requirements are not such as stimulate the writing of good work, good work is apt to be unwritten.

"In another respect also the exigencies of the magazine have materially affected the novel; that is, in regard to the demand for a 'happy ending.' Few modern magazines will contemplate tragedy, certainly not tragedy in a long serial. In consequence tragedy is at a discount, and the full presentation of human life in fiction is limited to that extent. Apart from Mr. Hardy's work, how many examples of tragedy which has made a success have we in modern fiction?

"But there are other reasons also for the mediocrity of the latter. It would be ridiculous to claim that good judges and critics and men of taste are fewer to-day than they were, say, a generation ago, when Victorian literature reached its power. On the contrary, there are certainly more well-instructed tastes, and probably even a larger percentage in proportion to the rising population. But the multitude of books has affected this 'fit audience, though few,' and in a subtle way. It was a very much easier matter to sample and appraise the fiction of the day when the annual output was 500 than it is to do so now, when it stands at so much higher a figure.

"In fact, there is probably no one living who pretends to keep abreast of contemporary fiction. To do so would be a superhuman task, and would result in the obfuscation of the human intellect. As a consequence, it is easier for talent to escape notice now than it was. Superlative talent, one hopes and half believes, will always obtain recognition, though historical facts are against the comfortable theory. But it is certain that novels of considerable worth are overlooked daily in the whirl of publishing, reading and reviewing. We live at a faster pace than our fathers did in the literary world, as well as in the social and mechanical. Advertisement, chance, a lucky reader, may bring true worth to notice and acclaim; but for one thus discovered there may be a dozen withering for lack of attention. 'Lorna Doone' owed its recognition to the fact of a royal marriage; Thomas Hardy found an avenue to fame because an editor's name occurred in 'Under the Greenwood Tree.' Accident will make discoveries still; but it does not do to comfort ourselves with the assurance that all the discoveries to be made are in consequence made. The people of real discrimination have no time to sort the immense welter of books poured forth; they are dependent upon the accident of reading.

"This welter has in yet another way damaged the interests of talent. When books were fewer, and there was a more leisurely appraisement of them, it was possible for the subscribers to circulating libraries to get guidance from their favorite journals. Criticisms more or less illuminating appeared in many papers of good standing; and by these the subscribers were apt to make up their daily or weekly list for Mudie's or Smith's. Nowadays the number of serious literary journals is sadly curtailed, and not only so, but those that remain find it almost impossible to cope with the vast harvest of the printing press. Matters are made worse by the crowd of papers with no literary standards which puff this and that novel recklessly. Thus the people who could once reckon on guidance are now confused by varying judgments, and thrown more or less upon their own resources, and, faltering between good and bad, as often as not choose the latter.

"The spread of penny literature—to dignify it with that name—from kitchen to saloon has produced a state of confusion in the drawing-room. Once upon a time the drawing-room ordered its books according to competent advice, and, whether it read them or not, allowed them to remain for a fixed period upon the tables. Nowadays it is not incumbent on the drawing-room to order any particular book; and the cheapening of books and the tapping of new sources of supply have so bewildered the drawing-room that, as often as not, it reads the literature of the servants' hall. It once had guides; now it has few or none, and so goes its own way—to the neglect and detriment of the serious novel."

"THE goods of a season should be put in rapid motion. As 'left-overs' they not only diminish their own value, but they put a false flavor on the store itself."

SOME CANADIAN WOMEN WRITERS.

PUBLISHERS looking for fresh material may not improbably find it in the work of some one of the considerable list of Canadian women writers, more or less well known "across the border," but most of them unfamiliar here. The following selection from this list, considerably condensed in the choosing, is taken from a recent number of the Canadian Bookseller and Stationer:

If Canada may be said to have a literature, says the writer, first in order of excellence comes Madame Frechette, whose work, as a literary critic said, "has the wear and glow of the diamond." Three novels stand to her credit, and Harper's, Scribner's, The Century, and like high-class magazines accept her work. Agnes Laut, whose work comes under the heading of research, is the best known woman writer. She is the highest paid woman writer on the American continent, and has attained the dignity of "Advisor" on four leading American magazines.

Agnes Deans Cameron, who is a British Columbian, has within two short years leaped to the front rank. Her work is virile; she has intuition as well as grasp, and her first book, "The New North," contains everything the critic might desire. At present she occupies the important position of Canadian editor on a big London, Eng., daily newspaper.

Katherine Hughes, whose work represents care and labor as well as deep thought, has taken a quite unexplored field in Canadian literature; she is the first western woman biographer of the day. In her newspaper work on the Montreal Star, as later on the Edmonton Bulletin, her editorial work was spoken of as "good as a man's."

"Sowing Seeds in Danny," brought Mrs. Nellie McClung to the fore. A second book, "The Second Chance," is now in the printer's hands. Mrs. McClung's strong point in writing is her intensely human touch; she is the best child-painter we have—and her writing reaches right down into the pocket of your heart. She lives with her little family away out on the plains of Manitoba, and it is there she found the types she has given us so beautifully true to life. Mrs. McClung is yet a very young woman.

Lily Lefevre has the prestige of Grant Allen as kinsman to give her work in prose and verse notice; but is said to possess great originality of thought. She was a prize-winner in one competition at least, and in 1895 she published a volume of poems entitled "The Lion's Gate." She is the wife of a distinguished physician in British Columbia.

Mrs. Julia Henshaw's name is familiar as a writer of Alpine climbing in the Rocky Mountains, and her work embraces almost every topic you might mention. She published a delightful book on the flora of British Columbia; has at least two novels to her credit, and contributes to many English magazines.

Alice Ashworth Townley's "Opinions of Mary," following close upon "Just a Little Girl" and "Just a Little Boy," shows that humor and dramatic touch which belong to a writer who possesses the child heart.

Mrs. Claire Fitzgibbon ("Lally Bernard"), who is equally gifted in voice and pen, spent her early life in the atmosphere of politics, where, as the guest of her aunt, Lady Macdonald at Earnscliff, she became imbued with such extreme conservatism that she never forgot it. A charming personality and of good common sense, she is loved by other women; and as a worker she excels. Her writings belong particularly to the Toronto Globe, which first discovered her, but all the large English magazines give her place. She is an enthusiastic "Canadian"—a tariff reformer to the backbone, and as a public speaker is well known at home and abroad. She is at present writing a Canadian novel, the first chapters of which I was permitted to see, and when it comes out the prairie land will applaud.

Lady Edgar's "Life of General Brock" and "Ten Years of Upper Canada" make her an acceptable member of the craft. Katherine Hale's "Canadian Flag Song," if she wrote nothing else, would give her place.

"Kit," of the Mail-Empire, represents all that is good in newspaper writings. She may be said to be a pioneer in the work. Her influence is wonderful, and she has the biggest following of any woman-pager in or out of Canada. Kit has beauty as well as brains, and is a personality of rare charm. She is the wife of Dr. Coleman, of Hamilton, Ont.

Valance Patriarch is the most recent writer heard from. Her book, "The Chien Boule Dog," took like wildfire in the west, where she is known as the shyest of women. She has just closed a contract with her publisher for the next five years' work, and a second book is almost completed. She is a charming hostess in Fort Rouge, Winnipeg, and her ability extends to housekeeping as well as writing.

"Peggy," Mrs. Balmer Watt, sends out a clear note from the high lands of the North. She is the author of "Town and Country," a dainty little book descriptive of life out West. "Peggy" writes brightly, cleverly and as one who observes. Her husband is the proprietor of The News, in Edmonton.

Maria Lawson, of the Victoria Colonist, is the author of a "School History of Canada." She collaborated with Rosalind Young in a geography-history of Canada. Miss Lawson is a woman editor who writes on big subjects, and she conducts the best child-page in any newspaper I know.

Mrs. Harris, a daughter of the late Sir James Douglass, is the author of the first book of Indian legends written in Canada. Kate Simpson-Hayes followed with a "Legend of the West," and I have seen it somewhere stated that she produced the first book of short tales in the Canadian west.

Evelyn Gunne, of Kenora, Ont., is the author of a book of poems of very real worth, and she is a song writer of some distinction. Her "Builders," which came out in the Canadian Magazine, was copied from end to end of Canada. She is at present engaged in short story writing.

Pauline Johnson, best known of all Canadian women writers, has lately left off platform work, and is quietly housed in Vancouver, B. C.

Then we have Maud Regan (prize essayist); Mary McKay Scott, the founder of The Woman's Journal; Mrs. S. J. Graham, whose "Etchings from a Parsonage Veranda" made no small stir; Anna M. Wilson, winner of a thousand dollar prize offered by the Chicago Post; Mrs. M. Forsyth Grant, who writes on history; Helen Gregory Flesher, a critic and scholar; Mary Morgan, with two books of verse to her name; Madam Dandurand, the only comedy writer we have; Mlle. Beaupre, in scholarly rhyme; Mme. Thibeault and "Felicite Angers," who claims the distinction of writing the first French-Canadian novels; Annie L. Jack, whose "Book of Gardening" delights; Eliza S. McLeod, in patriotic verse; Jean U. E. Nealis, of St. John, N. B., whose writings I recollect so long ago as five-and-twenty years; Annie Rothwell Christie, writer of four story books; and Emily Weaver, whose "Canadian History for Boys and Girls" is well known.

Marjory MacMurchy and Katherine L. Lawson are both well known names in Toronto literary circles. Then we have Sarah A. Curzon, whose "Laura Secord" set her in front ranks; Lily E. F. Barry, of Montreal; Anna T. Sadlier in translations; Mary Russel Chesley, a Quaker controversalist, and also Margaret P. Murray with Maud Ogilvy, of Montreal, whose work is along biographical lines. Agnes Fitzgibbon, a granddaughter of Sussana Moody, herself one of the first of Canadian writers, but whose work, "Roughing It in the Bush," nearly "did" for Canada as a homeland for the emigrant; Amy Burlinguist, a prolific magazine contributor; Emma Wells Dixon, whose "Miss Dexie" made a continent laugh; Madge Robertson, too, well known amongst the best; and last but not least, "Jean Blewett," sweet singer of the land she so loves.

The impressionist school sent out Helen M. Merril; Agnes Ethelwyn Wetherald and Irene E. Morton, with Annie Campbell Huestis, Lily Dougall, of Montreal, and, let us not forget, "Virna Sheard," whose work has forced a pathway by sheer merit. Then we have a fine novel writer in Joanna Wood, as also Mrs. Harrison, "Seranus," whose "Pine, Rose and Fleur de Lis" haunts the reader. Alice Jones, Halifax, N. S., breathes freedom and storm of the seagirt shores; and from the same land comes "Beautiful Joe," a classic in itself, the work of "Marshall Saunders."

"Hester Hope," Mary Wallace, Constance Fairbanks, Mrs. Towne, Mrs. Sherk, Cora Hind, "The Matinee Girl," Mary Snyder, Florence Lediard, Lilian Laurie, "Sandy Grant," the latter, whose pawky Scotch humor delighted her prairie readers; with a number of others coming rapidly to the fore. But Jean McIllwraith's place in Canadian letters is an assured one, as is that of the Lizar sisters. The latter wrote in conjunction "The Canada Company," and put the impress of genius on every page. Janet Carnochen, of Niagara, stands alone a specialist in "records," but is shy about claiming kinship with the "historian." "Barbara Ballantine" is the latest name to appear in the writer's dictionary, and as she is yet scarcely out of her teens, has reached few readers. I visited her while in Victoria, B. C., and found her deep in the preparation of a historical novel which seemed to me to be fine and promising. Her pretty home, "Sans Souci," stands just above Oak Bay in the straits of Juan del Fuca.

I have purposely left the name of Agnes Maule Machar till the end of my article. "In Lays of the True North" you get all that is of patriotic splendor with animated and artistic skill. Miss Machar, whose pen name, "Fidelis," is a household word throughout Canada, sings a note of hope. She reaches the heights and the heart at once.

THE PAPER TRADE SITUATION.

The long and disastrous strike of the employees of the International Paper Company was settled by the company's granting most of the men's demands, including increased wages, recognition of union and abolition of Sunday work.

It is interesting to note that at about the same date the steamship "Kiora" brought to New York the first shipment of Newfoundland paper. The shipment consisted of 940 barrels of wood pulp and 1607 rolls of newspaper consigned to a New York City newspaper.

This being the first instance of paper shipments from Newfoundland, the Customs House officials took time to appraise the duty, allowing the consignee to receive the goods pending payment of the duties decided by the Treasury.

Newfoundland, being outside the Canadian Federation, and having its own fiscal system, stands on a different footing from the Dominion in its customs relations with the United States, and it has yet to be seen how the question of the maximum and minimum clause in the new American tariff applies in this case.

Under paragraph 409, of the tariff of 1909, the duty imposed on printing paper suitable for the printing of books and newspaper is 3-16 of a cent per pound for value not over 2¼ cents per pound, and rises according to values up to 15 per cent. on value over 5 cents per pound. But if any country shall forbid or restrict in any way the exportation of, or impose any export duty upon printing paper, wood pulp, or wood for use in the manufacture of wood pulp, there shall be imposed upon paper imported from such country an additional duty equal to the amount of such export duty and of value at not over 3 cents per pound, a further additional duty of 1-10 of a cent per pound.

Owing to the strike in the mills of the International Paper Company and the scarcity of news print paper, prices advanced from $2.20 a hundred pounds to an average of $2.50, which compares with $2.13 at corresponding time last year.

Though the consumption of paper increased greatly since July 1 last year, the exports of domestic printing paper in the nine months' period also increased greatly. rising from 49,685,522 pounds valued at $1,506,313 in 1909 to 73,155,924 pounds valued at $2,154,321 in the nine months ended March 31.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS MOVE UPTOWN.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS have joined the list of publishing houses to move into the "Fourth Avenue zone," they having taken fine offices on the ninth floor of the new Fourth Avenue Building, at the corner of 27th Street.

On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the American branch of the house in 1905, THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, in giving an extended summary of the history of the house of Thomas Nelson's Sons, in its issue of June 3, 1905, spoke of it as "alert and progressive as though it were a product of the twentieth century" instead of considerably over a hundred years old.

This characterization seems almost prophetic in the light of developments in the house's history since 1905. Pioneers in many lines of publishing, as witness their initial series of the American Standard Revised Bible, they were pioneers in cyclopedia publishing, their Loose Leaf Encyclopedia being a unique departure that has proved remarkably successful.

Not satisfied with this, however, the English house of Thomas Nelson's Sons inaugurated two years ago their sevenpenny reprints and this year their two shilling new novels, which, in the opinion of many trade observers, threaten to revolutionize some phases of the book publishing and bookselling business. With these cheap books the American branch of the house is not directly concerned, trade conditions being too different here, but they are a striking commentary on their up to dateness of viewpoint and equipment.

The organization of the American house continues as before, Mr. William Thomson continuing to act as president and manager, a position he has filled since 1905.

APPLETON'S "NEW PRACTICAL CYCLOPEDIA."

D. APPLETON & Co. have just published what they call the "New Practical Cyclopedia," in six volumes, of the usual cyclopedia size. The work is a condensation of the more bulky cyclopedias, an effort being made to omit all non-essential material and to treat the subjects included in a simple and popular way. The work is printed from new plates, is said to be newly edited throughout, and considerable effort has been made to make the more important articles strictly up to date, including such topics, for instance, as the discovery of the Pole.

The paper is of a heavier quality than is commonly used in cyclopedia work, running 400-500 pages to the volume. There are 1500 illustrations in the text and four full-page half-tones, four full-page colored illustrations and four maps in each volume, not enough maps to give the states, for example, but enough to give all the larger land subdivisions.

The price of the cyclopedia, bound in buckram, is $18, in half morocco, $24. We understand that it is not intended to market it through the trade, but that it will be sold by subscription only. The publishers believe that a cyclopedia, authoritative, and yet smaller and cheaper than the standard sets, should have a good sale.

The scholars who have lent their names to the undertaking should be a guarantee of its excellence. The general editor is Dr. Benjamin, of the U. S. National Museum, and Dr. Brown, U. S. Commissioner of Education, has written an introduction.

"PIECEMEAL" BOOKS?

REFERRING to Harper's Modern pocket edition of Hardy, printed on thin paper and bound in flexible covers, the Lounger in the erstwhile Putnam's Magazine says: "Books got up in this stye are attractive to me, possibly to you, but the majority of buyers, especially of fiction, like a heavy book rather than a light one; they think they are getting more for their money; they like a lot of type on a page. The woman who buys her books in department stores is very apt to judge them by the amount of reading matter they contain, rather than by the merits of the story. I have seen women pick up books and criticise them to the 'salesladies' as being in too large type and as not being thick enough. I remember one woman who chose a book from a counter, saying, as she turned its pages, 'This looks like a pretty book, there's so much type on the pages and it feels so heavy when you pick it up.' She did not notice the title or care what it was about. A woman of that sort would hardly care for Mr. Hardy's 'Tess.' Messrs. Harper are appealing to a higher grade of bookbuyers than the lady in question, but I have heard people, who ought to know better, criticise novels printed on feather-weight paper. On the other hand, I have heard people say they would rather buy a book that was light and easy to handle without knowing what it was about, than one more clumsy to handle of the contents of which they were equally ignorant."

It would be interesting to see how many booksellers' observations corroborate those of the Lounger.

The latter continues: "This reminds me of the reading habits of a friend of mine; he is a publisher and lives out of town. I happened to be in his office one day when he was starting for his train, and noticed that out of a large envelope he took something that looked like a pamphlet and put it in his breast pocket. It did not look exactly like a pamphlet, so I said: 'What is that you are hiding away in your inside pocket?' 'That,' said he, 'is fifty pages or so from Chesterton's "Dickens." I read it on the train, and I find it much more convenient to read it piecemeal; it is easy to handle, and I take just enough to last me from the station in

New York to my destination.' 'How do you happen to find it in piecemeal form?' 'I don't,' he answered, 'I make it that way. I have one of the boys in the office take the cover off carefully, and break the back so that it is easy to lift out as many pages as I want to read; then, when I have finished, I have it restored. It may cost me forty, possibly fifty, cents to rebind, but I find that I can get through more reading this way than any other, for the simple reason that I can carry as much as I want to read and I can hold it in one hand instead of fighting stiff covers with two hands. I have,' he added, 'read more books this season by adopting this method than I ever read on trains before.'

"I have never taken a book apart to read it in tabloid form, but I have often read advance sheets of the books that come to me unbound in this manner, and I find them very popular, for any of my friends who happen to see them beg them of me to read in bed or while reclining; it is so much easier to hold a few pages than a bound book."

COMMUNICATIONS.

GENERAL WAYMOUTH'S FINGER-TIPS.

PORTLAND, ME., May 20, 1910.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I note that Mr. A. B. Fifield, of New Haven, assumes that in my book, "The Ramrodders," I put my one-armed hero, General Waymouth, into the class of crustaceans and had him grow a new arm, lobster-fashion, within the space of a few pages. Mr. Fifield bases his assumption on the fact that I have General Waymouth with "his finger-tips together." Will not Mr. Fifield kindly note that General Waymouth had a few finger-tips left on his one hand and that the attitude of bunching them while in an attentive attitude is characteristic and suggestive to a student of pose? The palmist tells us that such attitude denotes concentration, the bunched finger-tips showing that the mind is engaged in assembling facts. Perhaps "The Ramrodders" needs footnotes to explain certain matters that the rush of the story would not allow, and I hasten to add this one in order that Mr. Fifield may not detract from the war record of my aged hero by filling again the empty sleeve.

Sincerely yours,
HOLMAN DAY.

DEPARTMENT STORE SUBSCRIPTION SETS—AN ANSWER.

NEW YORK, May 23, 1910.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Abiscott's letter, in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of May 21, makes a very serious charge of misrepresentation against many leading booksellers and department store merchants, who are conducting highly successful sales of de luxe standard sets throughout the United States and Canada.

The reputation of these firms is above reproach in their respective cities, and their business has not been built up by "misrepresentation" nor by attempting "sharp methods to hoodwink the public," as Mr. Abiscott alleges. Their books are displayed for thorough examination, and therefore there is no chance for the buyer to be hoodwinked, as is often the case when buying from the book agent's prospectus. Booklovers are not fools, and the reason they are buying freely is because they recognize in these special sales the admittedly unprecedented opportunity to secure better books and lower prices than they can get elsewhere from book agents or other stores. Enthusiastic expressions of satisfaction are innumerable on the part of booklovers who have purchased from these sales. Buyers often remark that they have bought exactly the same or similar sets from agents paying several times the store price. Booksellers will vouch for these facts.

Every one familiar with the subscription and trade book business knows that we acquired the immense sheet and bound stocks of subscription editions of standard authors published by John D. Morris & Co., Bigelow, Smith & Co., and many other well known subscription publishers. These are called genuine subscription de luxe editions when sold by agents at high prices. When identically the same or even better editions are sold by booksellers at low prices can any one, even a book agent, justly raise the cry "fake" and "misrepresentation"? As to "worn out plates," it is well known that our line represents more new sets of plates than all other standard set lines put together. Space forbids details.

Regarding list prices, we send you herewith actual order blanks of subscription publishers, showing the regular list subscription prices fixed by the publishers themselves, and obviously merchants are quite within their rights in quoting these prices in comparison with their own special prices. This view has been adopted by the most conservative firms in the country, in fact the quoting of high subscription prices in catalogues and advertisements is a general trade custom among booksellers.

In conclusion, we beg to say that we do not know Mr. Abiscott nor his firm, but we do not take seriously his offer "to fill all orders on our sets at bargain prices less 10 per cent. and make a satisfactory profit." If he really can do this, then we would suggest it is only necessary for him to announce it widely to booklovers and he will do a very large business. We hereby agree to assist him by supplying him catalogues at cost.

Very truly yours,
W. D. LANE & COMPANY.

MINISTERIAL DISCOUNTS AND NET PRICES.

NEW YORK, May 25, 1910.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: It is the custom of the large publishing houses to allow trade discounts to mission boards. The Mission Board officers, the missionaries and the friends of both classes are thus enabled to buy books at wholesale prices If a missionary pays me $1.50 for a net book published at that price and later finds that a neighbor has bought it for $1.12, I am unlikely to have future orders from him, nor from any of his fellows abroad or the hundreds of ministers he meets at home. For the impression he gets and passes on is that I overcharge on everything.

The only excuse a publisher ever offers is that all the others do it, although I find nothing in the rules of the A. P. A. which permits the practice.

The ministerial 10 per cent. is, I suppose, too deeply embedded among the customs of the booktrade to be dug up. But just how net fiction is to benefit the trade when we all give away 25 to 40 per cent. of the profit on the existing net books I confess I do not see. BOOKSELLER.

CANADIAN SHIPMENTS AND THE CUSTOMS.

MONTREAL, May 26, 1910.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: We would be much obliged if you would draw the publishers' attention to the fact that in making shipments to Canada, and particularly in sending parcels to other firms in the United States for enclosure, the correct value of the contents of the parcel must be given. Where this is not done it causes serious delay I have known cases where the contents of enclosures, say $4.75 or $8.25, have been marked on the outside $5 and $10, and the customs authorities have refused to accept the invoices without further information from the exporters. The trouble is trifling, but the delay caused is often quite serious. Your kind attention to this matter will be much appreciated, as on a former occasion when we drew attention to carelessness in making out invoices and other like matters a marked improvement was soon noticed. Yours truly,

A. T. CHAPMAN.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM B. PERKINS.

WILLIAM B. PERKINS, one of the best known men in his time in bookselling circles, died at Summerville, S. C., on May 29, in the fifty-first year of his age.

"Billy" Perkins, as he was known to every one, was born in 1859 at Lewiston, Maine, where his father was a successful business man. After graduating from Bates College in his native town he engaged as a traveller with D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, nearly thirty years ago. From the beginning of his career on the road he was noted for head and heart qualities that made him not only a popular but a very successful salesman. In 1884 he formed a partnership with William R. Spinney, now senior salesman with T. Y. Crowell & Co., opening up as jobbers under the firm name of Spinney & Perkins, at No. 7 Bible House, New York. The young and hopeful house, however, lasted only a brief year, after which Perkins, as a free lance, handled a number of commission lines, among them the Hayes Lithographic Co.'s product, with offices in Clinton Hall, Astor Place. About twelve years ago he engaged with the house of H. B. Claflin Co. as buyer for the book department. In this strategic position he showed in a marked degree his nerve as a plucky plunger, if not as a genius in marketing his purchases. Among the famous deals which he put through was one involving the marketing of an edition of twenty thousand copies of Funk & Wagnalls' Standard Dictionary, trade edition, controlled at that time, curiously, by Ward & Gow of advertising fame; and another involving the purchase of twenty thousand sets of the first popular uniform edition of Rudyard Kipling works published by Doubleday, McClure & Co. It was during this time that an affection of his eyes developed so seriously that he became totally blind eight years ago. Although he separated from the Claflin concern when darkness began to envelop him, he courageously opened an office in the publishing centre as a commission man but eventually gave it up, as he found his apartment in "The Chelsea," near by, adequate for business purposes. From the time he became blind he made a brave and cheerful fight to keep up. He was constantly attended by a private secretary and managed with indomitable grit to keep in touch with a number of interests, including, besides the sales of standard sets, the promotion of a freight car company and the marketing of a new style of automobile tire. His health becoming seriously shattered a year ago, a number of friends provided the means for a winter in the South, where he remained until the end.

The funeral services were held at the Merritt Mortuary Chapel in New York on Wednesday last, on the arrival of the body from Charleston. The announcement of his death in one paper only, without customary notice of services, deprived a host of his friends of the opportunity to pay their respects at the passing of one of the most picturesque characters in the trade.

He leaves a wife and daughter. His brother, the Rev. John Perkins, is pastor of the Unitarian Church in Portland, Maine, both being nephews of the late Hon. Nelson W. Dingley, former governor and congressman of the State of Maine.

DR. ROBERT KOCH, the famous bacteriologist, who before all others began the great battle with tuberculosis, died at Baden Baden on Friday, May 27, from a disease of the heart. Dr. Koch devoted his whole professional life to bold and original research in medicine, particularly in the development and extension of the knowledge of disease bearing germs and their behavior under all possible conditions affecting human health. Dr. Koch was born at Klousthal, Hanover, December 11, 1843. He was a graduate of the University of Göttingen. In 1905 he was awarded the Nobel prize for achievements in physiology. In 1908 Dr. Koch visited the United States and was entertained by more than 400 physicians at a dinner given at the Waldorf Astoria in New York. His best known writings in book form are: "On Cholera Bacteria," "On Bacteriological Investigation," and "The Investigation of Pathogenic Organisms."

ALFRED TRUBNER NUTT, the well-known London publisher, was drowned at Melum, France, on May 21, while trying to save his 17-year-old invalid son. The two were driving along the Seine when the horses bolted into the river. Mr. Nutt went to his son's rescue, but the swift current was too strong for him. He was born in 1856, and was the eldest son of the founder of a house always noted for its beautiful printing and fine book work. He was personally greatly interested in folk-lore, and in 1897 was elected president of the Folk-Lore Society. An author as well as a publisher, among his books were "The Legend of the Holy Grail" and some essays on Celtic folk-lore.

MISS LOUISE FORSSLUND, known in private life as Mrs. Carey Waddell, a magazine writer and the author of "The Story of Sarah," "The Ship of Dreams" and "Old Lady No. 31," published last year by the Century Co., died last month in her home, in Sayville, L. I. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Foster, of Sayville. She is survived by her husband and one son. She was born in 1873.

LIEUTENANT BOYD ALEXANDER, a noted explorer and writer on scientific and geographical subjects, is reported to have been murdered by natives near Wadai in the French Congo.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MARGARET SUTTON BRISCOE, author of "The Image of Eve," is in private life Mrs. Hopkins, the wife of Professor Hopkins, of Amherst College, Massachusetts.

MME. YVETTE GUILBERT, who has been engaged on her autobiography for some time, is said to have finished her book, which will be an interesting chronicle of a rise from poverty to success on the stage. She has been ill while writing her book, but she is now strong again.

REX BEACH has returned from Panama, where he has been spending two months, accompanied by his wife. His arrival in New York was simultaneous with that of his new book, "Going Some," which has just been issued by the Harpers. Mr. Beach expects to begin work on a new novel some time during the summer.

BEULAH MARIE DIX was married recently to George H. Fiebbe at Cambridge, Mass. Miss Dix is the author of many plays which have been produced both in England and in this country. She has recently produced a volume of one act plays entitled "Allison's Ladd and Other Martial Interludes." Among her books are "Hugh G. Wyeth," "A Little Captive Lad" and "Merry Lips." Among her plays are "The Road to Yesterday" and "Young Fernald."

MISS RHODA BROUGHTON is advertising in the "agony column" of a London paper for the name of an anonymous admirer, whom she wishes to thank personally for a "handsome gift." Miss Broughton lives at Richmond, where she has a home on the terrace overlooking the Thames. Six years ago her name appeared in the Civil List as the recipient of a pension of $375 a year "in consideration of her merits as a writer of fiction."

CHARLES F. HOLDER, author of "The Channel Islands of California," published by McClurg & Co., is an authority on sea angling. He has fished everywhere and has established a code of ethics in angling that has done more to elevate that sport in the nineteenth century than anything else. In his present book he describes the famous lost woman of San Nicolas, one of his trips being made to discover the home of this the strangest Crusoe of the century.

THE "Delta," who is advertised as the author of "A Marriage Under the Terror," the 250 Guinea Prize Novel in the contest arranged by Mr. Melrose, published in this country by G. P. Putnam's Sons, is a Miss Patricia Wentworth. The judges of the contest were Mrs. Flora Annie Steel, Miss Mary Cholmondeley and Mrs. Henry de la Pasture. It is interesting to note that the adjudicators independently and without consultation with each other, unanimously fixed upon this novel as the winner, and were ignorant of the sex of the author. In the opinion of the judges "A Marriage Under the Terror" is really an excellent story, full of dramatic situations and interesting from start to finish.

MRS. A. VIVANTI CHARTRES, the author of that remarkable novel, "The Devourers," the romance of a "wonder child," has the advantage of belonging to three nationalities. Her father was Italian, and intimate friend of Garibaldi and Mazzini; her mother was German, sister of Paul Lindau, the dramatist, and of Rudolph Lindau, the diplomatist; and her husband is an English barrister, John Chartres. She writes with equal facility in four languages. Her little daughter, Vivanti Chartres, is the musical prodigy whose fame as a violinist has spread throughout Europe. "The Devourers" is Mrs. Chartres's first novel in English, but she has already made an immense reputation as an Italian poet, Giosue Carducci, who contributed a preface to her "Lirica," ranking her among the greatest women poets of Europe. "Three women," he wrote, "have been great in modern European lyric: Desbordes Valmore, Elizabeth Browning and Anne Vivanti Chartres."

THE palm of versatility, not only among writers but in all fields of human activity, must be awarded to Dr. Edward Breck, the author of "Wilderness Pets," published this week by Houghton Mifflin Co. The son of a naval officer whose family was prominent in Boston in pre-Revolutionary days, Dr. Breck has been successively a student at Oberlin, Amherst, Cambridge in England and Leipsic (where he gained his Ph.D.); for several years first tenor in grand opera in Germany; literary adviser of a large American publishing house; foreign correspondent of the New York Herald and the New York Times; Vice-Consul General at Berlin; assistant to the United States naval attache at Berlin during the Spanish War; the navy's most daring and successful secret agent in Spain itself during that war; the author of several hundred articles in the forthcoming edition of the "Encyclopædia Britannica;" and a registered and licensed guide in the Province of Nova Scotia, in fact the president of the Nova Scotia Guides' Association. As if this were not enough, Dr. Breck has been several times champion fencer of Germany and New England in two weapons, thrice golf champion of Germany and Austria, and is an acknowledged authority on angling and moose hunting in Nova Scotia. He lives near Annapolis Royal, N. S., in a cabin on the shores of a lake surrounded by his wild pets, some account of which he gives in his new book.

PERIODICAL NOTES.

SPEAKING of Life's "Improper Number," says Printer's Ink, our idea of an improper number of a magazine is one that has more reading matter pages than advertising pages.

THE CIRCLE PUBLISHING CO., of New York, publisher of the Circle Magazine, at its annual meeting of stockholders recommended to the directors the issuance of $300,000 of debenture bonds, the funds from the sale of which to be used in still further improving the magazine and its business.

A MAGAZINE, which will be called The Telephone Review and which will be devoted to the small talk of the thirty-eight telephone exchanges of New York City and the indefinite number outside of it, has been issued by the New York Telephone Co. The first number was published May 20; it will be issued monthly. The new magazine is for free distribution among employees.

MRS. DISNEY LEITH'S article on the boyhood of Mr. Swinburne, which apeared recently in the Contemporary Review, was originally written as a letter to Mr. Watts-Dunton, to be included in his "Reminiscences of Swinburne." Mr. Watts-Dunton has been suffering much of late from poor health, but it is hoped that his "Reminiscences of Swinburne" will be ready for next season's publication.

THE sales management magazine, Advertising & Selling, of New York, has acquired the Trade Journal Advertiser, of Chicago, and with the May number of the former the two were consolidated. Recently when there was published a newspaper story that a huge trade paper trust had been formed the Trade Journal Advertiser was named as the organ of the alleged combination, probably because the magazine carried the advertisements of the publications of interests which owned a number of the largest trade papers.

IN the May issue of The Magazine of Commerce (London) there is an article on "Ocean Journalism," by George Thow, dealing with the daily papers of the Atlantic. "For artistic work perhaps the French journal takes first place," he says. "It has not the business-like look of The Cunard Daily Bulletin, but it is a charmingly got-up number. The frontispiece is a reproduction of some good drawing, as, for example, Whistler's 'St. James Street,' or a photograph of an actress whom the public admires. The special articles are beautifully illustrated on fine toned paper. The title of the paper is Journal de l'Atlantique. Six numbers are published on the voyage across the Atlantic."

THE June Bookman is a Mark Twain number par excellence in the literal meaning of that phrase. There is an eloquent "Appreciation" by Henry M. Alden and a prophetic evaluation, "Mark Twain a Century Hence," by Harry Thurston Peck. Besides these are signed articles by Bailey Millard and William H. Rideing, respectively, "Mark Twain in San Francisco" and "Mark Twain in Clubland," taking up in a very delightful way two special phases of Twain's personality and life; "Mark Twain's Biographer," by Firmin Dredd, and "The Story of Mark Twain's Debts," by Frederick A. King. Rivalling in interest the articles themselves are the illustrations, from photographs and original line cuts, accompanying them.

THE Butterick and Ridgway Companies gave a reception last week Wednesday in the Butterick Building, on the occasion of the opening of the twelfth floor of the building, which has been decorated by the Tiffany Studios. Some 7000 invitations were sent out to members of the professions represented in a magazine—editors, publishers, authors, artists, advertisers, and friends, and apparently all were accepted. The editorial, advertising and art departments are on the twelfth floor, opening from what is probably the largest and handsomest magazine reception room in the city. In addition to the attractiveness of the decorations the rear windows have a view of the river. From the advertising end of the building refreshments were served, and a large room used for the clerical force was used as a smoking room. Visitors who desired it were taken on personally conducted tours through the fifteen stories of the building, including the printing department, which is probably the largest in the United States outside of the Government Printing Office at Washington.

PERSONAL NOTES.

HERBERT S. HOUSTON, vice-president of Doubleday, Page & Company, recently addressed the Board of Trade of Springfield, Mass., on the subject of municipal publicity.

J. W. CORRIGAN, his many friends in the trade will be glad to know, has returned to publishing, associating himself with George H. Doran Company.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ON May 20 the Privy Council of Japan adopted a convention for the protection of copyrights.

HILAIRE BELLOC, the genial English M.P. who has already given us volumes "On Nothing" and "On Everything," will soon issue a new book called "On Anything."

D. APPLETON & Co., of the Publishers' Baseball League, defeated G. P. Putnam's Sons at baseball, 24-12, at Jerome Avenue and 169th Street, last Saturday.

THE MACMILLAN Co. informs us that it is they who will publish Miss Jane Addams's autobiography, "Twenty Years at Hull House."

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY are daily receiving reviews and letters of appreciation of Mary C. E. Wemyss's delightful little novel, "The Professional Aunt."

"WINDOW ENVELOPES," it is said, are likely to be prohibited in the international postal service after this year, owing to the frequency of complaints that the addresses are very difficult to read.

GROSSET & DUNLAP inform us that our notice two weeks ago of their removal was a bit premature. Attention is called, however, to the formal announcement of their removal in this issue.

JOHN ADAMS THAYER, who was a co-partner with Erman Ridgway in establishing Everybody's Magazine, has written an account of his eventful business career, which Small, Maynard & Co. will publish immediately.

JOHN KENDRICK BANGS was once asked what he would do if he had only a week to live. "Depends on how I felt," quoth he. "If I was sick already, I'd spend the week reading books for the sick—and then I would want to die!"

CHARLES H. KERR & COMPANY have just sent us "The Evolution of Property from Savagery to Civilization," by Paul Lafargue; and "The Class Struggle" (Erfurt Program), by Karl Kautsky, literary executor of Frederick Engels, both full of socialistic instruction on the subjects of capital and labor.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have ready attractive editions of two old favorites—Kingsley's "Water-Babies" and Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare." George Soper has made for these popular stories an appropriate setting, interpreting them in many spirited illustrations, some in color and others in black and white. His sprites and fairies are especially successful. Both volumes have decorative end-pieces and title-pages.

AUTOMOBILE bookshops are the latest development in the bookselling trade. Three vans, specially designed for rapid conversion into shops, are being built at Luton at a cost of $3000 each and are to be sent by easy stages northeast, northwest and west, carrying cheap and up-to-date volumes for sale to people of the countryside. Three men will accompany each van, one to act as driver, and one will be an experienced salesman.

THE BALL PUBLISHING Co. have just issued "A Renegade Poet and Other Essays," by Francis Thompson, with an introduction by Edward J. O'Brien. Francis Thompson died in 1907, a man of the rarest genius, who is only now coming into his own of appreciation. Also ready is "The Man Forbid and Other Essays," by John Davidson, also with an introduction by Edward J. O'Brien, dwelling upon the notable work that John Davidson has furnished to his generation as poet, novelist, essayist and critic.

THE MACAULAY COMPANY have just published "The Princess of Forge," a romantic Western novel by George C. Shedd. The author is a Western business man, interested in the irrigation and colonization of those sections of the West now in process of reclamation. He has chosen the placer mining country for the scene of his story—in fact "Forge," from which the tale takes its title, is the name of a gold mine.

A NEW De Morgan novel which will probably be entitled "An Affair of Dishonour" is announced for publication. It would appear from this novel following so closely upon "It Never Can Happen Again" that Mr. De Morgan was producing hastily written books. But the latest volume published was completed long before publication and held back for various reasons, including the desire of the author to have the book appear upon his seventieth birthday.

THE WESSELS & BISSELL Co. have just published "The Garden at 19," by Edgar Jepson, whose recent novels have proved so successful both here and abroad. Fashions in fiction blossom and fade, but for the tale of mystery there is always a safe welcome. This mystery story is unique in that the author has introduced ancient superstition into modern life with remarkable skill. Human curiosity can never resist a good mystery, nor human emotion a tale of eerie horror, and the author has combined these two qualities into a thoroughly well-knit plot.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just issued "England Before the Norman Conquest," by Charles Oman, which is volume 1 of "A History of England," in seven volumes, of which Charles Oman is the general editor; "Lake George and Lake Champlain," by W. Max Reid, describing the war trail of the Mohawk and the battleground of France and England in their contest for the control of North America, all illustrated from fine photographs by John Arthur Maney; and "The Devourers," by Mrs. A. Vivanti Chartres, who brings out that the genius of a family is generally the "devourer" of the others.

THE baseball enthusiasts who will attend the Bookmen's Annual Field Day Outing at Skokie Country Club, Chicago, on Friday, July 8, are to have their ball game as usual—the East vs. the West. The press agent, just to hear the loud noise, gave it out through THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY that there would be no ball game. The scheme worked well in an advertising way, for everybody has been talking about Field Day ever since, and roasting the committee as they went along. As things now stand the ball game will take place, the committee stands exonerated—and the press agent gets his pay raised.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN Co. published on Wednesday, May 25, the following books: "Letters to My Son," an unusual book by a well-known English author whose name is withheld; "The Russian Road to China," by Lindon Bates, Jr., a prominent member of the New York Legislature; "The Health of the City," by Hollis Godfrey, author of "An Elementary Chemistry;" "The New Laokoon," an essay on the confusion of the arts, by Professor Irving Babbitt; "Dead Letters," by Maurice Baring; "Dogs and Men," by Henry C. Merwin; and a school edition of "The Basket Woman," by Mary Austin.

THE Chicago Board of Education is planning to act as selling agent for all text-books used in the public schools. The plan is to do away with the "middleman," the bookseller, and for the Board of Education to purchase the principal text-books directly from the publishing concerns and circulate them among the pupils at a reduction of about 20 per cent. in cost over prices asked by the retail and wholesale dealers. The plan has been tried this term with two of the geographies, which recently brought about a test case of the Ettelson text-book law, resulting in a victory for the Board of Education. The Board of Education argue that the plan will do away with the retailers' and wholesalers' profits, and result in a saving of more than $300,000 yearly to the taxpayers. The cost of circulating the books will be practically nothing. Strong objections will be made to the plan by the local book concerns.

FRANK SAVILE, whose story, "The Pursuit," will be brought out early this month by Little, Brown & Co., is an Englishman whose own main "pursuit" is the management of large estates in the Eastern Midlands of England. He finds time, however, to do a "good bit of travelling" as often as possible out of the beaten track, when he picks up a large amount of the material later converted into book form. He has generally had the experience of the details he recounts, and in "The Pursuit," at least, he followed his hero and heroine over practically every inch of the way, which led through Spain and Tangier and ended in Messina at the time of the earthquake. Local color is so blended into the background of this story that the reader is quickly conscious of an atmosphere of perfect reality, which considerably heightens the romantic nature of the incidents.

FOR most travellers the chief object of a trip abroad is to see the countless art treasures of Europe, but European pictures are so numerous that their selection is a serious question. Baedeker stars so many pictures that for the hurried traveller he is confusing. For such Lorinda Munson Bryant, whose "Pictures and Their Painters" proved so popular a few years ago, has written "What Pictures to See in Europe in One Summer," just being issued by John Lane Company. Mrs. Bryant takes the reader through all the principal galleries of Europe, from the Sistine Chapel at Rome through Dresden, Munich, Florence, etc., to Paris and London. The most noteworthy pictures in each gallery are described and very often fixed in the reader's mind by some interesting anecdote of the artist. The 138 reproductions in half-tone of famous paintings described in the text are an added attraction, as is also the prefatory chapter dealing with "The Mistakes of Sightseers." The convenient size of the volume will insure its finding its way into the travelling equipment of many.

IT is an interesting commentary on the relations of Church and State in England, a side-light of special interest to the book-trade, that one of the first acts of the Privy Council, immediately after the death of King Edward, was to order the changes necessitated in the Prayer Book. With exceeding promptness Mr. Henry Frowde, on the same afternoon, issued the new King George v. Prayer Book. In the prayer for the King's Majesty the name King George appears in place of King Edward, and that for the royal family now reads, "We humbly beseech Thee to bless our gracious Queen Mary, Alexandra the Queen Mother, Edward Duke of Cornwall, and all the Royal Family." It was later pointed out, however, that the book as issued was incomplete, the British people, as represented by Parliament and Cabinet, not having given their formal assent to the change of service. This formal assent is in the form of an inserted Royal Warrant from the Home Office which has to be signed by the Secretary of State for the Home Department, authorizing the new Accession Service. The omission was promptly rectified, however, and the new Prayer Book is now "official" throughout the Empire.

THE seventh volume of the New Schaff-Herzog "Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge" has just made its appearance from the presses of the publishers, Funk & Wagnalls Company. A volume every three months has been issued, and five more are yet to appear to complete this 12-volume work. The present volume brings the work down to the subject "Moralities." Volume VII is especially notable for its several important articles, among which should be mentioned: "Lutherans" (15 pages), conjointly written by Dr. Froböess, director of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Prussia, and Dr. Spaeth, of the Lutheran Seminary, Philadelphia; "Methodists" (24 pages), by Dr. James M. Buckley; "The Mennonites" (10 pages), the joint work of Professor Cremer, of the University of Greifswald, and Dr. John Horsch; "The Lord's Supper" (17 pages), by Professor Cremer and Professor Rietschel, the latter of the University of Leipsic; "The Mass" (16 pages), by Professors Kattenbusch and Drews, of the University of Halle; "Missions to the Heathen" (24 pages), by Dr. Grundemann, of Mörz, Prussia, and Dr. Warneck, Professor of the Science of Missions, University of Halle.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY published last week "Daniel Boone and the Wilderness Road," the latest addition to the Stories from American History Series, by H. Addington Bruce (25th); "A Garland to Sylvia," a dramatic reverie with a prologue, by Percy Mac Kave (27th); "The Rural Life Problem of the United States," by the Right Honorable Sir Horace Plunkett (25th); "Fruit Growing in Arid Regions," by Wendell Paddock, professor of horticulture in the Colorado Agricultural College and Experiment Station, and Orville D. Whipple, Field Horticulturist of the same institution (25th); and "Elements of Algebra," by Dr. Arthur Schultze, author of "Elementary Algebra" (25th). Their publications for the week ending June 4 are: "A Life for a Life," the new novel by Robert Herrick (1st); "A First Book in Psychology," new and revised edition with an appendix, by Mary Whiton Calkins (1st); "Elements of United States History," by Edward Channing (1st); "Writings on American History, 1908," a complete bibliography of books and articles on United States and Canadian history, compiled by Grace G. Griffin (1st); "British Floral Decoration," by R. F. Felton, florist to King Edward and many courts of Europe, with 28 full-page illustrations, 12 in color (1st); "The Alps," by Sir Martin Conway, with 24 full-page illustrations (1st); "The Motor Routes of France," by Gordon Home, with 32 full-page illustrations and 63 maps and plans (1st); "A Guide to the Antiquities of Upper Egypt," by Arthur E. P. Weigall (1st); and "Totemism and Exogamy," by Dr. J. G. Frazer, in four volumes (1st.) There are also new editions of "The Book of the Rose," by Rev. A. Foster Meilliar (1st), and "Dictionary of Political Economy," three volumes, edited by Sir Robert H. I. Palgrave, F.R.S. (1st).

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

G. E. STECHERT & Co. have reprinted the Indexes to Series III and V of Notes and Queries, the well-known English periodical. These volumes have been worth from $25 to $30, and even at these exorbitant prices could not be found. They offer the two volumes together for $10, and any separate volume for $7.50.

ALTHOUGH it is true that we have no complete index to any of our metropolitan papers such as is suggested by a recent article in the journal of the Special Libraries Association, nevertheless the Annual Library Index offers in its "Index to Dates" for the year what is to all intents and purposes such an index, and one applicable not to one but to the files of any newspaper. Undoubtedly a voluminous cumulative index like that of the London Times would be bibliographically desirable. It would almost certainly have to be a subsidized undertaking. Meanwhile the "Index" of the Annual Library Index should not be forgotten.

THE Bureau of Manufactures of the Department of Commerce and Labor is considering the publication of an international business directory, the material for which is now in the hands of the Bureau. Consular officers and special agents have collected several hundred thousand names of the chief business men of every country of the world. These have been carefully gone over, selected, corrected and classified. The cost of printing a directory of the 125,000 names remaining will render the work impracticable unless sufficient subscriptions in advance can be obtained from business firms interested.

PUTNAM'S make a bibliographical announcement of considerable importance, a new edition of Sonnenschein's bulky "Best Books." As every bookman knows, "Sonnenschein's" is intended to be a classified reader's guide to the best books on every subject, with full bibliographic information. The new edition is said to be "to all intents and purposes a new work, omitting, as it does, all books that have been superseded, and bringing the subject down to date. The new edition will contain a total of over 100,000 titles, and will have complete indices of authors and subjects. It will be published in three parts, which may be obtained separately, divided as follows: Part I.—Theology, Mythology, Folklore and Philosophy. Part II.—Society, Geography, History and Antiquities. Part III.—Science, Medicine, Literature and Philology.

A dainty and practical

GIFT-BOOK FOR THE BRIDE-TO-BE

Her Book

By Mabel G. Swan

THIS book is intended first of all for practical use—as a record book to be kept from the time of the announcement of a girl's engagement to her wedding day. The diary is supposed to begin at the time the engagement is announced, giving opportunity for recording luncheons, teas, "showers," and all other pleasant happenings that accompany an engagement. There are pages for lists of the people to be invited to the wedding, and those to whom announcements are to be sent; for lists of gifts, names of givers, and dates of acknowledgment of gifts; pages for photographs, newspaper clippings, descriptions and samples of her trousseau, of her wedding gown, veil, and flowers from her wedding bouquet; and for lists of bridesmaids and ushers.

It is intended secondly as a gift book, as a book to be kept for future years, to recall one of the happiest times in a girl's life. The pages have attractive marginal decorations by Blashfield and others, and a quality of paper suitable for taking writing ink is used. No more appropriate engagement gift can be imagined.

Ready Shortly: Two Titles that Spell Success

Emily M. Bishop's first book since "Seventy Years Young"

Daily Ways to Health

By EMILY M. BISHOP

For twenty years past, Mrs. Bishop has been teaching thousands of women at Chautauqua and elsewhere how to be strong and happy. How well she succeeds in interesting her audience is attested by the large and steady sale of "Seventy Years Young." Her new book is on similar lines, but includes as well detailed exercises and instructions for preventing and overcoming the ills that flesh is heir to. It is a summary of her life work, and contains philosophy and practical teaching which, if observed, will keep mankind young and healthy.

The first novel by JAMES OPPENHEIM

Wild Oats

The author of "Dr. Rast" has written a bold and powerful novel whose central theme is a social evil—the most glaring of our civilization. He approaches the subject reverently and delicately, yet with necessary frankness. While there is every reason to believe that the novel will become the centre of hot dispute, none will charge the author with a desire to be merely sensational, for the sanction of authority is given in an enthusiastic foreword by EDWARD BOK, editor of The Ladies' Home Journal.

Catalogues on Application

The Educational Number

INFORMATION WANTED!

¶ Do you publish any school text books that were not included in last year's Educational Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY?

¶ Our aim is to make this special number a perfect catalog of text books for school use, and to this end we invite publishers to send data for its thorough revision.

¶ There is no charge for listing titles, and we furnish on application blank forms that insure correct entry and classification.

¶ If interested may we hear from you at once?

LIPPINCOTT'S LATEST

Sterne: A Study

By WALTER SICHEL. To which is added The Journal to Eliza, printed for the first time

This book is a study—"A sound and admirable piece of criticism; sober, just, penetrating, and illuminating," as the London Times aptly puts it. It seeks to interpret the problem of the man, to vitalize him and his companions. It does not pretend to be a formal biography, though new facts, as well as old, pervade. Two important letters, printed years ago in the Archivist, are now utilized with others, three or four new autograph letters have also proved serviceable, and at least five of the portraits are of new impression.

Eleven full-page illustrations in tint, artistically mounted
Octavo. 375 pages. Handsome cloth, $2.50 net

Spirit and Matter before the Bar of Modern Science

By ISAAC W. HEYSINGER, M.A., M.D.

A book, written at the end of a lifetime of scientific research, intended to show that religion is universal, and its basis spiritualism, without which it cannot exist. At last, thinks Dr. Heysinger, the true spiritual religion, crushed by Protestantism and opposed by natural science, is asserting itself with the new scientific psychology against empiricism and materialism. The latter portion of the book is devoted to examples of and interesting experiments in "supernormal" phenomena.

Octavo. 460 pages. Handsome cloth, $3.75 net

Life and Health

By JAMES FREDERICK ROGERS, M.D., Author of "The Body at Its Best," and other essays

The aim of this work is to present the whole structure and function of the human organism by picturing its historical unfolding.

The first part of the book, "Meaning of Health," is intended as a general picture of the body in life and health, and the second part, "Maintenance of Health," deals more explicitly with the problems of hygiene.
